Praia de Alvor Beach is composed of a vast space of fine white sands that form part of a bay. Its waters are attractive to surfers, especially beginners, since the waves are not too tall.

There are plenty of restaurants and bars that surround the area and a lot of them are selling seafood, such as fresh fish. They also have al fresco dining for guests who prefer to catch sunup and sunset at the beach.

Majority of the guests are engaged in various water sports and activities, such as snorkelling, diving, swimming, and sailing. Some would lounge on the sand while renting their sunbeds and shades from the nearby facilities.

Praia de Alvor Beach, is very close to the main village. Though there are many different kinds of transport, including cars for hire and buses, many do prefer taking a stroll along or toward the beach. The main town, meanwhile, is able to maintain its quaint charm and fishing-village vibe. Only a few buildings can be seen, which is good since it doesn't obstruct the lagoon view. It is also characterized by winding and narrow roads, filled with eclectic shops, cafes, and restaurants.

The Alvor Beach is one of the most famous and looked for Beaches in the Algarve.
